

Georgia Department of Economic Development - INTERNSHIP

Help bring jobs to Georgia!

Looking for a way to grow your communications skills? If you're an energetic self-starter with an entrepreneurial spirit, the Georgia Department of Economic Development (GDEcD) has opportunities for you to contribute to our work creating jobs in Georgia. As an intern in the Marketing & Communications division, you'll learn about economic development from the ground up. You'll get the opportunity to meet key Georgia business, tourism and economic development contacts, hone your writing skills and add to your work portfolio.

Responsibilities are diverse and will include internal and external communications for the Tourism, Global Commerce and Entertainment divisions. Opportunities including writing press releases and marketing material, interacting with journalists, managing and monitoring social media accounts, doing online research and handling occasional administrative duties.

This internship opportunity is open to undergraduate or graduate college students, or individuals who have graduated in the past year or less. Communications, marketing, journalism or English majors will benefit the most from this experience. The successful candidate must have excellent writing and grammar skills, and good familiarity with AP style. The work requires a detail-oriented, organized and enthusiastic team player. A flexible schedule is available, and the job can be reached via MARTA. Internships are currently unpaid due to state budget cuts. Position is open until filled.
